BBC Tunes in to Colour !

The BBC has announced plans to begin broadcasting television programmes in colour from next year.

Britain will be the first country in Europe to offer regular programming in colour. The announcement was made in the Commons by the Postmaster General, Anthony Wedgwood Benn.

The new service is expected to cost the BBC between £1m and £2m per year, for an initial four hours of television per week on BBC2, rising to 10 hours a week after 12 months.

The colour programmes will still be available on ordinary television sets in black and white. A colour receiver will cost about £250 and there will be a supplementary licence fee.

Andy Pandy first appeared on our screens in the 1960s. This show would have been in black and white then as the BBC had not yet started broadcasting in colour. Can you draw Andy Pandy—in colour or black and white?
